We have again to congratulate ourselves on a satisfactory year's. working, and although the number of stormers fitted with refrigerating machinery continues. to increase we have been able to dispose of a larger quantity of ice during the year 1895 than during any preceding twelve months. The company's premises are in excellent order a cost of $378 in accordance with the sanitary laws. As mentioned in the report, it will be necessary to expend some money within the next two or at the outside three years in enlarging the works and improving the machinery in order to meet the increasing demand for ice during the months of July, August; and September, which necessitates the upkeep of a much larger plant than would be necessary were the deliveries more equally divided over the other months of the year. Under these circumstances the General Managers trust the conservative policy they propose to adopt in dealing with the profits will meet with the approval of shareholders. With regard to this year I may say there appears at present every prespect of the results being again favourable. Owing to the decline in the value of coals the working expenses will probably he slightly less, and as the vacant offices in the Company's town property have been let for a period of three years. our rent account may be expected to show an increase of approximately $1,500. IN APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

MCEWEN, RESPONDENT. This was an appeal from the Acting Police Magistrate, who sentenced the appellant to seven days' imprisonment for using an insulting expression in the presence of the.

Hon. H. E. Pollock (Acting Attorney. General) appeared for the respondent, and Mr. J. J. Francis, Q.C. (instructed by Mr. Ellis, of Mr. V. H. Deacon's office), represented the Mr. Francis said the appeal was brought under the Magistrates Ordinance, sections 95 110, and it originated in the following way. On the 14th January the appellant was present in the Police Court during the hearing of a case in which he was not directly concerned. He had gone there as a person of the friend who had been summoned to answer a charge of The C. P. steamer Empress of Japan left keeping false weights and measures. After the case was concluded the defendant, who had been fined, and the appellant were leaving the court when the appellant was heard by two constables to make use of a certain expression. The constables were sitting close to the door, and the remark was reported to the Magistrate and the appellant was at a subsequent date brought. before the Court, charged under section 90 of the Police Magistrates Ordinance with having behaved in an insulting manner and with having used an insulting expression in the presence of the Magistrate when acting in the discharge of any magisterial duty, and sentenced to seven days' imprisonment. Notice of appeal was immediately given on a question of fact.

The Acting Chief Justice—Is this not an appeal both on fact and law? Mr. Francis Yes, my lord; if your Lordship will allow me-The Puisne Judge—I have not received a copy at all of the notice of appeal. Both Judges The Secretary of the Puniom Mining Co., ought to have a copy; all I have is the Magistrate's statement. Mr. Francis expressed regret and, continuing, said that later on it, was thought advisable in the interest of the appellant to appeal on a question of law as well as on a question of fact, and so leave to appeal on a question of law was applied for and granted. The Puisne Judge - Are you going on the

Mr. Francis-I do not intend to press seriously on the question of fact, because letters despatched from Hongkong on the 5th am bound to say that on the evidence do not think the Magistrate could have come to any other conclusion than that the appellant had made use of certain expressions in court. Mr. Francis—Yes, but to ascertain the mean. ing of this expression the words cannot be dissociated from the other words in the same section and from the apparent object and purpose for which the section was passed; neither can they be entirely dissociated from the general law that regulates proceedings in contempt of court cases. Of course the object of this section: must be and is entirely the same as the object for which the general law for contempt of court exists to provent any interference with the legal procedure or with the operations of the court. To prevent interference with the course justice is the sole object for which the entire law with reference to contempt of court

The Acting Chief Justice If the Magistrate is sitting on the beach and an expression used in not sufficiently loud tones for the Magiatrate to hear, is not that using an insulting expression in the presence of the Magistrate? Mr. Francis-Literally it is. But I ask you whether these words were really used in the presence of the Magistrate. The Acting Chief Justice If the Magistrate was present, yes. The Ordinance does not say "in the hearing of the Magistrate." Mr. Francis argued that "in the presence of the Court" was not a translation of "in faceis curia," and that an inferior court had no power to punish for contempt of court.

The Acting Chief Justice—In England i Magistrate cannot send a man to prison for contempt of court, but in an inferior court a man dan be bound over or expelled from the court. We are dealing here with a specific Ordinance. The circumstances here are dif-ferent, and the Legislature has given certain powers here which are not given in England. We are not here to discuss the policy of the Act, but to administer it. Mr. Francis said the expressions were used not with reference to the Magistrate, and not in his hearing, and they were heard by only two persons who happened to be within almost touching distance of the speaker. The word were not intended to be heard by the generalit of the people in court, and therefore they coul not in the least degree bring into contempt the Magistrate, or the Magistrate's decision, ur court in which the Magistrate was sitting Counsel then quoted Blackstone in support his argument that the meaning applied to the words "in the face of the court." was that the Court should be able to take immediately cognisance of the words used and to punish without calling any witnesses, and that the Court of its own knowledge knew what had transpired. The Acting Chief Justice said Blackstone spoke according to the common law of England, and the passage referred to would not apply in Mr. Francis asked their Lordships to find that the offence was not committed in the presence of the Court unless the Court had direct and immediate cognisance of it. The Acting Chief Justice-We know that in England there are some very able judges who have been on the beach a long time and are rather deaf. Do you mean to say that a man can say what he likes and keep the whole Court laughling because the Judge cannot

Mr. Francis-No. because those Courts have full power to punish. The Acting Chief Justice-You ask us find that "in the presence of the Magistrate' means "in the hearing of the Magistrate"? Mr. Francis-In this particular case, because the matter did not come directly to the notice of the Magistrate himself. The Paisne Judge—It did come to his notice; they went and told him. Mr. Francis-I think I said directly to his notice; the Magistrate did not hear what was said. The expression was used sotto voce and was only heard by two men. It was not intended to insult the Court or to degrade the administration of justice. The Acting Chief Justice pointed out that the expression was used in open Court and could be heard by two police officers. Was not that degrading the administration of justice.

Would it not be intimidating the Court? Mr. Francis replied that it would if the justice. The uppellant was nearly speaking to himself. If he had wanted to insult the Court and to misbehave himself deliberately he would have spoken out in Chinese loud enough to be heard by his countrymen or to someone in particular to show he did intend to offer an

The Acting Puisne Judge-Can you tell us why he was there at all? Mr. Francis said the appellant was looking after the business the master of which was summoned as the master was away at the time. The lymph we have at the institute is of the very best quality and should be used more widely than it is and pushed in the markets very much more than it is. We have a right to interfere in this business, for England is the home of vaccination, and you all remember that it was introduced by Sir William Jenner. We ought to do our best to introduce it into China, and the Government should spend some hundreds of pounds in order to supply all China with it. We are not doing our duty as Englishmen by remaining where we were one hundred years ago. Our grandfathers did as much as we are doing now in regard to such diseases as small-pox amongst Chinese. At present the Hongkong institute is under the direction of the Colonial Surgeon and the actual work is gratuitously done by the Veterinary Surgeon.
